

3/27/2023

https://www.reddit.com/r/dataisbeautiful/comments/122j7bj/oc_importance_of_religion_in_each_us_state by of/

For this weeks visualization I chose a map of the United States that demonstrates the importance of religion in each state, by percentage of individuals who consider themselves “very religious”. A couple main takeaways, the deep south seems to be the most religious area in the United States, while the west coast, pacific northwest, northeast, and midwest seem to be generally less religious. It surprises me that Wyoming isn’t closer to Utah in terms of percentage. This data was taken from this study: https://www.salon.com/2013/10/22/study_religious_more_likely_to_lie_for_financial_gain_partn_er/ (Could not find original posters sources, but browsed around for this link^)